Chinese Lightly Shell Quemoy In On-Off Truce Gunnery Avoid Supply Landing Areas

TAIPEI (AP) — The Chinese Reds opened their strange odd-day, even-day war in Formosa Strait Sunday, shelling the Quemoy offshore islands lightly but aiming away from supply landing areas.

This apparently is the pattern the Reds intend to follow in their new cease-fire proclamation. They announced Saturday night that on even-numbered days they would not fire on airstrips, beaches, wharves and ships on Quemoy. This would permit a flow of supplies to embattled Quemoy.

Reports from Quemoy said the Reds held to the letter of this promise on the first even-numbered day of their cease-fire. The Nationalist Defense Ministry said 239 shells hit the Quemoy Islands between 6:10 a. m. and 6 p. m. Sunday. Only 73 landed on Quemoy itself. The rest hit Little Quemoy, Tatan and Ehrtan to the west.

Presumably the Nationalists fired back. The Defense Ministry would say only that their gunners on the islands were still holding to their policy of shooting when shot at. Since the Reds broke their full-scale cease-fire last Monday, the reinforced Nationalists have answered almost round for round with newly supplied U. S. guns.

The Red on-again, off-again cease-fire, in the eyes of military men, is clearly not a military maneuver.

Some officials feel the move foreshadows a major Communist campaign to revive the Communist-Nationalist talks held intermittently until the Nationalists lost the mainland in 1949. The idea would be to pry President Chiang Kai-shek away from the United States.

If this is the Red aim, the Nationalists could only laugh it off. "Sure we'll talk with them, if Marshal Peng—Red Defense Minister Peng Teh-huai—will first overthrow Mao Tse-tung," said one Nationalist official. Mao is Red China's Communist boss.

Another theory is that the cease-fire proclamation reflected the Reds' desire for a face-saving move to taper off its unsuccessful Quemoy offensive to a cease-fire that would not bind them to muzzle their guns for good.

2 G.W. Students Burned To Death In Fraternity Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two George Washington University students were burned to death early Sunday when fire swept a fraternity house a few hours after a gay party. Six other young men escaped, one burned severely.

Roger Weldon Usery, 22, of Rockingham, N.C. and Floyd Lansing Ormsby, 21, of Islip, N.Y., died while asleep in a third floor bedroom of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house, located on a street near the university.

The fire was discovered about 3 a. m., a few hours after a "coal miner's" party at the fraternity. Part of the first floor had been decorated to simulate a coal mine shaft, with black tar paper on the walls and sawdust on the floor.

Lt. Anthony B. Mileo of the fire marshal's office said apparently the fire resulted when careless smoking ignited wood shavings and spread. He estimated damages at about $40,000.

60,000 Hear Graham In S.C.

FT. JACKSON, S. C. (AP) — An estimated 60,000 people, reportedly the largest number ever to attend a religious gathering in the Southeast, blanketed the grassy parade ground at this infantry training base Sunday to hear an open-air rally conducted by evangelist Billy Graham.

The rally originally had been planned for the state house grounds at nearby Columbia. But when Gov. George Bell Timmerman objected, citing Graham's views against segregation, the site was moved.

A spokesman for the rally committee said it would have been virtually impossible to accommodate so many people on the state house grounds. The figure of 60,000 was estimated by members of the Graham committee and Ft. Jackson military police.

Castro Warns U.S. To Stay Out Of Cuba Revolt

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Rebel leader Fidel Castro, in a personal broadcast from his mountain hide-out, warned the United States Sunday to stay out of Cuba's rebellion. The leader of the revolt against President Fulgencio Batista referred to a declaration by U.S. State Department spokesman Lincoln White last week after the rebel kidnapping of two Americans. White said the United States might have to take action unless such kidnapping stopped.

Castro called White's statements "aggressive declarations" and charged that U.S. Ambassador Earl E. Smith was plotting in Havana with Batista to provoke direct U.S. intervention in the rebel war.

"If the State Department continues to give credence to the intrigues of Ambassador Smith and Batista, thus incurring the unjustifiable error of leading the United States to an act of aggression against our sovereignty, you may be assured we will know how to firmly defend it," Castro said. "We have a duty to the country which will be fulfilled at whatever cost."

Apparently referring to White's charge that the rebel kidnappings last week were "uncivilized conduct," Castro said it was for the Cuban people and the world—not the U.S. State Department—to judge rebel acts.

After the return of the two kidnapped Americans, the United States evacuated 59 Americans from the northeast Cuban town of Nica, site of a nickel mine. Castro said this came about as part of a plot by Batista, Smith and various State Department officials to bring the United States into the rebellion. He noted that Cuban army troops first withdrew from the town. When the rebels took it over, he said, the Americans came to take out their people. After the evacuation, Cuban troops retook the town.

Republicans On Upswing, Alcorn Says

Ike Will Speak In
Charleston, W. Va.,
Pittsburgh Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn said Sunday that the Republicans were "decidedly on the upswing" and the Democrats "on the downswing" as they headed into the final week of the Nov. 4 election campaign.

Alcorn predicted that both Nelson Rockefeller and Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) would defeat their Democratic opponents in their New York races for governor and senator respectively.

He also said there has been "a substantial improvement in our position" in the campaigns in such key states as Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wisconsin. He said this election could provide "one of the great surprises of modern politics."

Ike's Campaigning Valuable

Alcorn said on a TV program (CBS—Face the Nation) Republican Party workers have been "tremendously fired up" in recent weeks by the participation of President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the campaign for GOP votes on Nov. 4.

The President leaves Monday for Charleston, W. Va., and Pittsburgh where he will make speeches on behalf of GOP candidates. The Pittsburgh speech will be televised to 18 Northeastern and Midwest states.

After his TV speech, the President will fly to New York where he will make a non-political speech Tuesday night at the National Football Foundation dinner.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President would include "some—not much" political activity in his two-day visit to New York.

Alcorn said the voters know the Republicans are the only one who can "keep the peace." He said the policies pursued under the three previous Democratic administrations resulted in war.

While predicting the election of Rockefeller in New York, Alcorn declined to speculate whether Rockefeller would vie with Nixon for the presidential nomination in 1960.

Two Atom Test Blasts Set Off

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) — Two full scale nuclear blasts were set off Sunday and four others were scheduled as scientists raced to complete their current test series before Halloween.

Oct. 31 is the date proposed by President Eisenhower for a one-year suspension of nuclear testing.

Sunday's first detonation lighted the crags of the Nevada desert with an eerie glow that might have come from some giant witch's cauldron.

The device was touched off at 2:20 a. m. Less than six hours later, at 8 a. m., a similar explosion shattered the heavens.

Atomic Energy Commission officials have scheduled a smaller shot Monday.

Two detonations are scheduled for Tuesday and a real whopper is on tap for Wednesday.

Both of Sunday's devices were in the 10 - kiloton range. That means they had the force of approximately 10,000 tons of TNT each. They were fired from balloons anchored at 1,500 feet.

State Buildings Near Completion

Rep. Simpson, Illinois GOP Leader, Dies

PITTSFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Rep. Sid Simpson (R-Ill.) died Sunday apparently of a heart attack, moments after he finished dedicating a new hospital wing.

Simpson, 64, was completing his eighth term as a Republican House member from Illinois' 20th District.

He spoke without apparent signs of distress during the ceremony. But a few moments later, he slumped in his chair.

The veteran central Illinois Republican leader lived in Carrollton, where he was born. He was a charter member of the American Legion.

His wife, Edna Oakes Simpson, and two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Stoffel Jr., and Janet Simpson survive.

Simpson was considered a shoo-in for another term in Congress in the Nov. 4 election. The Democratic contender for the seat is Henry W. Pollock of Quincy.

The Republican congressman's death 10 days before election left the prospect that his name will remain on the ballots which have already been printed.

GOP party leaders were expected to move swiftly in selecting a substitute candidate.

Pollsters' Forecasts Discounted By Nixon

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Sunday anyone trying to predict the outcome of the November election "will find himself as confused as a beginner with a hula hoop."

Nixon, who flew into Minneapolis to help boost Republican chances in the critical grain belt, said in a prepared statement that he noted Democrats "are pointing with glee" to the polls showing a decisive Democratic lead.

"I only hope that they make the same mistake we made in 1948 of believing that polls settle the result of an election," he said. "In 1948 at this time, the same pollsters who predicted a Democrat victory in 1958, predicted a Republican landslide in 1948."

GE Executive Slain; Ex-Employee Seized

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A man was walking from the car to General Electric executive was shot to death as he walked to church Saturday. Police arrested a former employee who once "bombed" the sprawling GE plant here with leaflets attacking the company.

Dr. Ernest Alden Terry Jr., 38, medical director of GE's Applied Park plant, was shot three times while on his way to a Presbyterian church.

Henry R. Anderson, 43, of Louisville, was charged with murder. He was arrested a few minutes after the shooting on information supplied by witnesses.

The witnesses said Terry was shot once in the head and then twice in the body as he fell withering to the sidewalk.

At the time of the shooting Terry had parked his car and let his wife, Betty, and four children out in front of the church.

Terry's family went inside. Ter-

Anderson refused to say anything about the shooting, officers said.

GE officials said Anderson, an amateur pilot, had been discharged several years ago after being on sick leave for a year. They declined comment on whether Terry was connected with the termination of Anderson's employment.

Anderson once scattered thousands of leaflets on the plant area from a low-flying plane. His leaflets, signed "Hank O'Kintuck," were described as obscene by a plant official.

Later Anderson's pilot license was taken away by the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Anderson filed a libel suit against the Louisville Courier-Journal for one billion dollars and one cent last year. The suit was dismissed.

Snow And Rain Lash Northeast

By The Associated Press
Snow spread Sunday in the higher mountain slopes of Colorado and the northeast giving white emphasis to autumn's advance.

It was a rainy day over much of the Rockies, with heavy downpours from Pennsylvania to the New Jersey and southern New England coast.

New York City marked an accumulation of nearly five inches since Wednesday, the heaviest since Hurricane Connie in 1955. Twenty-four-hour totals of more than two inches were common in Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The rain was driven over much of the area by a cold 40 m.p.h. wind. Atlantic City had a 24-hour fall of 2.95 inches.

The northeastern snowfall was heavy in some places. Tannersville, N.Y., 30 miles south of Albany, reporting up to 16 inches. Snows of 2 to 3 inches thickness were measured early Sunday in northeastern Pennsylvania and southern New England.

Pan-Am Launches Jet Service To Paris

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's first commercial jet airliner left here Sunday night carrying 111 pioneering passengers, including actress Greer Garson, on a flight to Paris launching regular daily transatlantic commercial service.

A sleek huge four-jet Pan American World Airways Boeing 707 streaked off an Idlewild Airport runway to inaugurate the first commercial jet service linking New York and Paris.

British Overseas Airways Corporation became the first airline to establish commercial jet transatlantic service. It began weekly flights connecting New York and London three weeks ago.

But Pan American offered the first jet service to Paris and the first daily jet service between the continents.

Cardinal's Body Flown Back To U.S.

ROME (AP) — The body of Edward Cardinal Mooney was flown back to the United States Sunday night.

The 76-year-old Archbishop of Detroit died at the North American Pontifical College Saturday just an hour before he was to have gone into conclave with other cardinals to elect a new pope.

Sunday night, as the cardinals were still locked in their secret meeting, the American prelate's body was put aboard an American airliner for the flight to New York. From there, the body will be put aboard another plane for Detroit, where funeral services are to be held Friday.

During the day, Cardinal Mooney's body—robed in scarlet—lay in state in a chapel at the college.

The body, placed in a chestnut coffin, was taken from the college to Rome's Ciampino Airport in a hearse escorted by motorcycle police. Many cars, carrying American priests and officials of Italy and the Vatican, followed in a motorcade to the airport.

Mine Rescue Chief Says 81 Must Be Dead

SPRINGHILL, N. S. (AP) — The known death toll in Springhill's Cumberland No. 2 mine upheaval was 12 Sunday night. A rescue chief said 81 others trapped below must be dead.

Rescue crews brought out alive 81 of the men who were working in the shaft when the mine gave a mighty surge underground Thursday night. Fifteen of them were injured.

Ten bodies were brought out Saturday. Two more were brought out Sunday.

Charles MacKenzie, manager of a Thorburn, N. S. mine who has been heading rescue teams, emerged from the shaft Sunday night and said he saw no chance of anyone below being alive.

He said rescuers were still running into gas pockets which forced them back into fresher air and impeded progress.

Springhill began to bury its dead in two funerals Sunday afternoon. There will be six more Monday.

Churches of all denominations joined in prayer services.

Families of trapped miners took part briefly in the services, then huddled at the shaft mouth to wait for further news.

Irate Dog Owner
Turns On Catcher
But Gets Caught

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard Edell, 22-year-old electrician, said Sunday he's doubly sure it shouldn't happen to a dog — because it happened to him.

He has a date in court Monday to argue his case.

Edell forcibly freed his collie, Chief, from a dog catcher's wire snare Friday. Dog catcher Robert Eley went for his pistol. Edell went for Eley. And then it happened —

While Chief scampered home free, Eley's partner, Roscoe Gumm Jr., looped the wire snare around Edell's neck and held him while Eley summoned police reinforcements.

Edell posted $40 bond after he was charged with attacking a dog catcher and resisting arrest.

Chief, whose infraction was strolling unleashed, was not brought to book.

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — The U. S. Navy Sunday called off the search for a two-engine plane which went down in the Pacific Ocean Oct. 18 with four men aboard.

Smoke Signal Mixup Leads To Confusion

Even Top Vatican
Officials Deceived
By Whittish Vapor

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Cardinals balloted four times Sunday without electing a pope. A mixup in smoke signals made it appear for about half an hour that Pius XII's successor had been chosen.

For a time, 200,000 Romans and tourists in huge St. Peter's Square were certain the Roman Catholic Church had a new pontiff.

Millions of others who listened to radios throughout Italy and Europe also were certain. They heard the Vatican radio speaker shout exultantly: "A pope is elected."

The scene around the Vatican was one of incredible confusion. White smoke from a little chimney atop the Vatican is the traditional signal announcing the election of a new pope. Black smoke indicates failure.

Twice during the day smoke billowed from the chimney.

At noon the smoke at first came white but it quickly turned unquestionably black. This was the sign the cardinals had failed to elect on the first two ballots.

At nightfall, white smoke billowed from the slender chimney for a full five minutes. For all the outside world knew, a new pontiff had been chosen.

"Bianco," Crowd Shouts
Clouds of the smoke were caught in searchlights trained on the Sistine Chapel chimney.

"Bianco! Bianco!" roared many in the crowd. White, white.

The Vatican radio announced the smoke was white. The announcer declared the cardinals at that moment probably were going through the rites of adoration for a new supreme pontiff. For a long time Vatican radio stuck to its insistence the smoke was white.

Even high Vatican officials were fooled. Callori di Vignale, governor of the conclave, and Sigismondo Chigi, the conclave marshal, rushed to take up the positions assigned to them. The Palatine Guard was called from its barracks and ordered to prepare to go to St. Peter's Basilica for announcement of the new pope's name. But the guard was ordered back to barracks before it reached the square.

Chigi, in an interview with the Italian radio, said uncertainty reigned in the palace. He added that this confusion persisted even after the smoke had subsided and until assurances were received from within the conclave that black smoke was intended.

"He said he had been at three other conclaves and never before seen smoke as varied in color as Sunday's."

Priests Start To Cheer
Priests and others working within the Vatican grounds saw the white smoke. They started to cheer. They waved kerchiefs enthusiastically, and figures of conclave assistants — in the windows of the apostolic palace waved back. Possibly they, too, believed a pope had been elected. They had no access to the locked Sistine Chapel, where the voting had taken place.

The crowd waited in an agony of suspense. Any pope elected would ordinarily appear on the balcony within 20 minutes. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

National Income Regains Most Of Recession Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the recession's decline in national income has been recovered, the Commerce Department reported Sunday.

National income rose $1,800,000,000 in the second quarter to an annual rate of 352½ billions, the department said. It added that a more substantial increase was registered in the third quarter.

The third quarter figure isn't available yet because July-September corporate profits haven't been computed. Profits are known to have improved significantly, however.

In the April-June quarter, the report said, corporate profits rose $1,200,000,000 to an annual rate of 32½ billions. This was still 11 billions below the prerecession peak.

National income hit a record rate of nearly 369 billion dollars in the summer of 1957. It dropped

250 Little Rock Juniors Begin Private Classes

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—An additional 250 displaced white high school students will report to the Little Rock Private School Corp.'s high school Monday as the venture expands teaching and classroom facilities.

The new enrollees are juniors. They will join some 250 seniors already studying at the segregated institution. About 250 sophomores also have signed up.

The corporation has purchased two buildings on the campus of the private school for use in teaching juniors and sophomores. Classes for the former start Tuesday, but 10th graders probably will not be able to begin studies before Nov. 3.

Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the corporation, said public donations for the private high school have passed the $100,000 mark.

"If the contributions continue at their present rate there will be no necessity to charge tuition," he said.

The corporation makes no tuition charge at present. But officials had said it might be necessary to bill students for a token payment of $1 or $5 per semester.

Several hundred other white high school students have enrolled in privately operated church schools. A new Baptist High School will begin operations with 350 students Monday.

No private schools have been established for Negroes.

When Gov. Orval E. Faubus closed Little Rock's four high schools last month to avoid court-ordered integration, enrollment totaled 3,698. Several hundred white students transferred to county schools near Little Rock, about 200 Negroes made similar transfers to Negro high schools in the county, and scores of students left the state.

Seaman Burned When Lightning Hits Navy Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—A seaman on a Navy plane reached out to catch his balance during an electrical storm Saturday and caught a bolt of lightning instead.

Lt. Cmdr. Byron Morgan, pilot of the P2V plane, said Aviation Machinist's Mate Buzz Barrett of Anacostia, Md., grabbed hold of the fuselage to steady himself during the storm over the Atlantic Ocean when the lightning struck. Barrett's hand was burned, not seriously.

Morgan said it was extremely rare for lightning to strike a plane during flight.

Two Men Held For Slugging, Robbing Clerk

SALISBURY (AP)—State and county police apprehended two men Sunday and charged them with slugging a store clerk and robbing him of $100.

State Police Lt. C. C. Serman said Richard Byrd, 30, and Johnny Hosendover, 36, both Negroes, were fugitives from the Florida Penitentiary in Gainesville.

They were held at the Somerset County Jail in Princess Anne on charges of armed robbery and assault with intent to kill. State police quoted Florida authorities that Byrd and Hosendover were among four men who escaped from the penitentiary last week and stole a car from a nearby home.

Lt. Serman said 64-year-old John Bloxom of Pocomoke City, clerk at Taylor's store at nearby Cokesbury, was robbed and hit on the head with a bottle of bleach about 8:15 Saturday night.

The bleach splattered into Bloxom's eyes and he was in critical condition Sunday in Salisbury's Peninsula General Hospital.

The two men ran their car into a ditch after the holdup and were captured on foot. Police said Byrd was taken shortly after midnight, about half a mile from the scene, and Hosendover about 9:30 a.m. on U. S. 13 just north of Princess Anne.

2-Year-Old Girl Perishes In Fire

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—A 2-year-old girl died Saturday in a fire which may have been set by a 5-year-old boy.

The girl, Gloria Lyles, was sleeping in an upstairs bedroom while her mother, Mary, 20, went away for a few minutes with Dorothy Hall, 27, with whom she shares the second floor.

Prince Georges County Detective Sgt. James P. Kearns said Mrs. Hall's son, Robert, set fire to a pile of waste paper he soaked with kerosene in the room next to that in which Gloria was sleeping and fled downstairs.

Flames prevented Robert's sister, Estelle, 8, from rescuing Gloria. But Estelle warned the family which lived downstairs and enabled them to escape.

Beall, Tawes Are Endorsed By Sunpapers

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Sunpapers, recommending that voters jump party lines in the general election, did the same Sunday in backing candidates for statewide offices in Maryland.

In an editorial the newspapers—which publish morning, evening and Sunday—supported J. Millard Tawes for governor and Sen. J. Glenn Beall for another term in the U. S. Senate. Tawes is a Democrat, Beall a Republican.

The papers also suggested Republican John A. Derr as the better controller candidate and Democrat C. Ferdinand Sybert for another term as attorney general.

In making the choices, the Sun commented that "both tickets sag with mediocrity."

The Sunpapers turned its shoulder on the two area candidates—Rep. James P. S. Devereux of Baltimore County who is running on the GOP ticket for governor, and Baltimore Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, the Democratic Senate aspirant.

The editorial directed its sharpest criticism at D'Alesandro, suggesting two compelling reasons why voters should pass him up:

"The first is that he looks upon this high office as a booby prize and doesn't really want it. The second is that he shows no qualifications."

It was pointed out that D'Alesandro had first announced himself for the governor's race, then when Tawes' drive had already gained much headway, D'Alesan-

Results In 86 Marginal Districts May Determine House Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—Election results in 86 key districts probably will determine whether Democrats or Republicans will control the next House of Representatives and how big the margin of control will be.

These are the marginal districts, and on them will be focused the eyes of political leaders in the Nov. 3 voting to elect 432 House members.

They are districts in which the winners in the last election skimmed through with less than 55 per cent of the total major party vote. Many of them are known as rotating districts because dro made a "perfectly cold-blooded deal" with Tawes and agreed to settle for the senatorial race. The Sunpapers said that Beall while not a vigorous senator, had done his job well in a quiet way and "has been a faithful guardian of Maryland interests."

of frequent party turnovers. They are the districts in which party changes are most likely to occur. Actually, there are 91 marginal districts on the basis of results from the last congressional elections. Two of them are in Maine, which held its election on Sept. 8. In the 1st District of Maine, incumbent Robert Hale, Republican, was defeated in September by James C. Oliver, Democrat. Hale won in 1956 with a bare 50 per cent of the total vote. In Maine's 2nd District, Frank M. Coffin, Democrat who got 53.4 per cent of the 1956 vote, was re-elected last month.

Three other districts which were marginal in 1956 won't be Democrat. In 1956, Watts got 52.747 Democrats and 39 Republicans, per cent of the vote and Frazier 53.7 per cent. Downing wrested the Democratic nomination this year from Edward J. Robeson Jr., represented by John C. Virgo, who got 50.8 per cent of the 1956 vote. In the 86 marginal districts in which contests will be settled next month, the winners in 1956 were Democrat. In 1956, Watts got 52.747 Democrats and 39 Republicans,

How much of himself does a father see in his son?

Anyone can see the ways in which a father and son look alike. But the father sees similarities that others miss. Reminders of his own boyhood, his own dreams as a youth.

In quiet moments, he thinks of the future. His son's future. And he feels especially good about certain sacrifices he is making. The money he is putting into life insurance, for instance.

There's a special comfort in knowing that his family is adequately protected, come what may. And it's reassuring that one policy is labelled "for my son's education."

A father is grateful for the chance to plan ahead. To make sure that his boy will have opportunities that he himself may have missed.

crowd waited a full half hour, now wondering whether the smoke was meant to be black or white.

Doubt set in swiftly. Many in the vast crowd began to drift away. But still there was confusion. News media had flashed the world the word that a new pope had been chosen.

After half an hour, radios began to chatter excitedly that the answer still was uncertain.

Only well after the time when a new pope should have appeared on the balcony above St. Peter's Square was it certain that the voting would have to resume Monday.

President Eisenhower sent her a signed birthday card and a mass in her honor will be offered Monday by The Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington.

PIEDMONT—The Rev. Samuel Delton Rexrode, who was transferred from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to Trinity Methodist Church here, has assumed his duties and he and his family have moved into the church parsonage at 144 Philo Avenue, Westernport.

Rev. and Mrs. Rexrode are natives of Franklin, Pendleton County, W. Va. His wife is the former Virginia Thacker, daughter of Dr. Thacker, a retired dentist of Franklin. Their sons are Paul and Larry, who have enrolled at Bruce High School, Westernport. Paul is a sophomore and Larry is a member of the seventh grade.

Rev. Rexrode did his undergraduate work at Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, and received his bachelor of theology degree from the Candler School of Theology at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

Since entering the ministry in 1942, he has served as pastor of the Richlands Church at Lewisburg; churches at Belle in Northern panhandle and Bramwell near Bluefield and Trinity Church at Point Pleasant. He served at White Sulphur Springs five and half years.

Rev. Mr. Rexrode, succeeds Rev. L. E. Crowson, who was transferred to Logan, W. Va., after serving three and a half years at Trinity.

During Rev. Crowson's ministry here the finances increased one hundred per cent. A parsonage has been built and provides a 3/4 acre of land for the residence of its minister. The giving to Missions has increased more than 100 per cent. The church has also taken into its support a native preacher in the Belgian Congo. It has received 75 persons into its membership.

Rev. Mr. Crowson also served Moorefield District as Youth director one year and served as district secretary of Evangelism for two years. During this time he served the church at large as chairman of the Kingdom Growth program, chairman of the joint commission of Promotion and Cultivation, and is currently a member of the West Virginia Conference Commission on Christian Higher Education and of the Quadrennial Policy study committee.

At Logan he will be responsible for a $100,000 expansion program for the Night Church. Rev. and Mrs. Crowson will reside in a new parsonage there which will be ready for occupancy in three or four weeks.

Cardinal Mooney Dies Suddenly In Rome

Edward Cardinal Mooney, a native of Allegany County and senior Roman Catholic prelate in the United States, died of a heart attack in Rome Saturday 70 minutes before he was to join the secret conclave to elect a new Pope. He was 76.

Cardinal Mooney attained the highest position in the Catholic Church of any Allegheny countian when he was appointed to the College of Cardinals on December 26, 1945, by the late Pope Pius XII.

He was born in Mt. Savage, May 9, 1882 a son of the late Thomas and Sarah (Henaghan) Mooney. He was christened in St. Patrick's Church, Mt. Savage, on May 14, 1882, by the late Rev. Patrick F. O'Connor, pastor of the church.

Cardinal Mooney made frequent visits to the Mt. Savage area before he was appointed to the College of Cardinals in 1945. Survivors include four first cousins, Mrs. Mary House, 641 Bedford Street; Mrs. Mary Yantz; Mt. Savage; John Henaghan; Frostburg; and Walter Helbig of Winchester Road.

His father worked as a coal miner in the Georges Creek section and the Mooney family moved to Youngstown, Ohio, when the future Cardinal was four years of age. He returned to his native state in his early teens to enter upon his preparatory seminary studies at St. Charles College near Baltimore.

He was ordained in the priesthood in 1909 after completing his studies at the American College in Rome and was assigned to Detroit in 1937.

The body was to be returned to Detroit for burial after a funeral ceremony in the North American college of Rome.

GOP Candidates Deserve Support

Now that the Maryland political campaign has entered its final week, it is time for each citizen to decide how he will vote on November 4. The issues have been stated, the candidates have made themselves known to as many voters as possible, and leaders of both parties have held whole series of rallies to fire the enthusiasm of campaign workers.

Meanwhile, it seems obvious that in spite of party feeling, certain candidates have earned the respect and the support of the people of Allegany County. Especially is this true of Senator J. Glenn Beall, now seeking re-election to the position in which he has served the people of this state so well in the past six years.

From earliest times, two of the most serious continuing problems of Allegany County have dealt with water: the periodic and disastrous flooding of the Potomac River, and a lack of water in the Potomac during the summer months. Because of Mr. Beall's efforts during his terms in the House of Representatives, both these problems have been overcome. It was Mr. Beall, then a Representative, who successfully pushed through legislation which resulted in the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project, now nearing completion. It was Mr. Beall, also, who brought about the completion of the Savage River Dam — abandoned during the Roosevelt administrations—and thereby assured an adequate flow of water in the Potomac during normally low-water months.

Surely, Senator Beall's excellent work, coupled with the fact that he is the first Allegany countian ever to be elected to the U. S. Senate by popular vote, transcend purely partisan considerations. It seems to this newspaper that Senator Beall certainly should have the support of all Western Marylanders, regardless of their party membership.

In the other state-wide contests, it is our pleasure to urge the election of Rep. James P. S. Devereux, the Republican candidate for Governor, John A. Derr, the Republican candidate for comptroller, and Robert A. Wallace for attorney general. All these men, and particularly Rep. Devereux, have demonstrated willingness to discuss all possible issues in the campaign, in contrast to the reticence of their Democratic rivals. Mr. Devereux, in particular, has been fearlessly outspoken on delicate issues without regard to the possible consequences at the ballot box. In this respect, and in his natural conservatism, he is a worthy successor to Republican Governor McKeldin.

Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde, now seeking re-election to Congress from the Sixth District, has earned the support of Western Marylanders through his continuing work with Senator Beall on the C&O Canal Parkway bill, and on other matters of district and statewide interest. Mr. Hyde's constituents have found him a highly accessible Congressman, who has been available regularly to all residents of the Sixth District who have wanted to consult him.

In the case of the Republican candidates for local offices, it will be readily apparent that their experience has fitted them well for continued service to Allegany County.

Delegates Thomas N. Berry, Noel Speir Cook, Fred B. Driscoll, Lester B. Reed and David J. Williams all are present members of the House of Delegates, and the other Republican candidate for this office is a former delegate of long standing, Estel C. Kelley. Although Mr. Berry and Mr. Williams are relatively new as delegates, they have demonstrated their ability to work with the rest of Allegany County's all-Republican delegation.

The remainder of the Republican candidates also are men of considerable experience. Sheriff Edward R. Muir has been in office since 1946. James Orr, president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, has served on the board since 1950, and Commissioner William A. Wilson headed the Board of Election Supervisors for seven years before being appointed to the Board of County Commissioners last year by Governor McKeldin to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of William Lemmert. Simeon W. Green, the other Republican candidate for County Commissioner, served on the board from 1938 to 1946.

It is with these facts in mind—the experience and accomplishments of the Republican candidates—that The Cumberland News lends its full and unqualified endorsement to all the Republican candidates in next week's election. We hope our readers will agree.

'Boy - Ain't Nixon An Unsavory Character'

Democrats Enthusiastic, GOP Nearly Silent

By Joseph Alsop

MINNEAPOLIS It is not exactly easy to write about politics on an autumn weekend out here. The air is crisp and brilliant. In its late fall colors, the countryside is just as splendid as one of the cock pheasants that half the people of the Twin Cities are hurrying into the countryside to shoot.

There is no football, to fill the bright air with balloons and banners, and the vast stadium with people. But a large part of the state of Minnesota's population still forms a counter-current to the current of gunners, hurrying citywards on pleasure bent. Carnival genially reigns, as it seems to do hereabouts every weekend all autumn. Maybe the most interesting question to try to answer is why this is the most pleasure-loving place in America, except perhaps San Francisco.

All the same, reporters are not sociologists; and this state also poses a political question of real interest. Maybe the best way to phrase the question is to ask why on earth the Democrats seem to like winning, whereas the Republicans almost seem to hate it.

No interminable period of time has gone by, after all, since this was a reliably Republican state. In the reign of Harold Stassen, despite the national magnetism of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Minnesota was solidly Republican. Even after Stassen's heady-eyed pursuit of his ambitions discredited him, the Minnesota Republican party produced an enormously successful state-wide vote-getter, in the person of Gov. Luther Youngdahl.

But Youngdahl failed to remake the Minnesota Republican party in his own attractive image, as Eisenhower has failed to remake the national party. Indeed, there are good reasons for thinking that

Youngdahl was given a judgeship in response, at least in part, to pleas from more conservative Minnesota Republicans who wanted to get this dangerous vote-getter out of the state.

Today, there is really not very much left of the Minnesota Republican party, except the last surviving Stassenite, good, earnest Sen. Ed Thye. And Thye does not even have a 50-50 chance to hold his Senate seat against Democratic Rep. Eugene McCarthy, unless their anti-Catholic prejudices make the local Lutheran voters forget their strong Democratic allegiances.

Yet it was not so very long ago, once again, when Minnesota's Farmer-Laborites were led by Henry Wallace's worthy sidekick, ex-Gov. Elmer Benson, while the local Democrats had the status of a small oppressed minority. Each group, in those days, hated the other worse than the devil hates holy water. But from a running start as Mayor of Minneapolis, Hubert Humphrey leaped into the Senate. And from his Senate seat, Humphrey conjured up the united, powerful and enthusiastic Democratic-Farmer-Labor party that rules Minnesota today.

Moreover, Humphrey is not the only grandee of the Minnesota democracy nowadays. The able young state Governor, Orville Freeman, looks almost as large out here; but he and Humphrey are so careful to stick together that they even shared the same hotel-suite at this year's state convention, so that no one could organize friction between two different leaders' headquarters. Unity and energy, youthfulness and optimism—these are the marks of the Minnesota Democratic party, from the precinct level to the top.

The Democrats here are proud of their party, too, whereas the Republicans, or at any rate the Republican candidates, seem to be ashamed of theirs. Both Sen. Thye and Rep. Walter Judd have plastered the Twin Cities with their billboards. But the billboards make no mention of the candidate's party affiliations—Judd and Thye might just as well be Democrats, or Farmer Laborites, or even "creeping Socialists," for all anyone is told about the matter.

If it were a purely local phenomenon, there would be no great significance in this Minnesota contrast between demoralized and somewhat shame-faced Republicans and Democrats trotting off to town with their tails over the dashboard. But it is not a local phenomenon. It appears in Minnesota in an especially strong way; but it also appears in California and in most other states where big jobs are at stake in this election.

In fact, this reporter has seen or heard about confident, hard-driving, united Republicans in only one state so far. The sole exception is New York, where Nelson Rockefeller is hardly running as a Republican. So the question about the difference between Republicans and Democrats plainly exists, as it has to answer as the other question about why Minnesota people are pleasure-loving and Indiana people most emphatically are not.

Want To Reduce? You'll Need Lots Of Motivation

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

We all know that the best way to lose weight is to eat less. But this is easier said than done, because most fatties have to contend with an appetite that is difficult to control. For this reason, the best results are obtained when the person is motivated to reduce.

This may explain why persons who must shed poundage because they have high blood pressure, heart disease, or arthritis usually are successful in doing so. The same applies to the man or woman who is in need of an operation — the procedure is easier and safer when excess fat is eliminated.

Vanity is the strongest of all motivating forces. What girl wouldn't slim down to please her heart throbs? The same can be said of the middle-aged housewife who finds her husband paying more and more attention to the willowy gals.

Many obese women have found moral support by joining organizations patterned after AA. The best known is TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly). All members have a common problem which they work out together. Telephone buddies sustain them when the temptation to eat is greatest.

Motivation does not always work, however. It is said that less than 30 per cent of those who reduce remain slender for years to come. Losing weight for a short time is not difficult but the trick is to maintain it for the long haul. The majority of dieters see-saw, taking it off and then putting it on.

Some physicians prescribe pills or capsules to discourage appetite. These medications are not always satisfactory, because of unpleasant side reactions. In addition, they lose their effect.

TOMORROW: Don't spew your cold bugs.

TAMPERING WITH BEER

Mrs. D. writes: Is there anything I can put in my husband's beer so he will grow to dislike its taste?

REPLY

No. There are chemicals which — when combined with alcohol — make a person sick but they never should be used except under the care of an expert. Altering the taste of beer will not make your husband stop drinking.

He will throw it down the drain and start on a new bottle or switch to a stronger liquor. Why not bring this problem to the attention of your physician, clergyman, or lawyer?

CHILD HAS HIVES

Mrs. M. M. writes: Our 3½ year old boy has had four attacks of hives; his hands swell and he complains of pain in his hands and feet. Can you explain these attacks?

REPLY

Hives is an allergic skin disorder and usually is due to some food. Special tests would be needed to uncover the culprit. Several modern remedies, such as the antihistamines and the cortisone-like drugs, bring quick relief. I presume the diagnosis is correct and swelling is not of rheumatic origin.

Teddy Roosevelt Was One Of Most Dynamic Of White House Occupants

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Several million words will be written about the 100th anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth. I should like to write a few words about him from the point of view of my father-in-law, Col. Dan T. Moore, who was TR's cousin and military aide.

To my father-in-law and other members of the family who knew TR, he was one of the most dynamic and vigorous men ever to occupy the White House. He was vigorous in his exercise and vigorous in his decisions. Golfing was not in vogue in the U. S. then but if it had been Teddy Roosevelt would have scorned it. Boxing was his form of exercise. He had fixed up the top floor of the White House into a sort of gymnasium, and there used to box with Colonel Moore. They traded some pretty tough blows—so tough that it weakened a nerve in Roosevelt's eye and later he lost his sight in one eye.

He never lost his military aide, however, and Colonel Moore only knew what had happened when, some time after Roosevelt left the White House, he read TR's explanation to newspapermen that "a young army officer with a terrific punch damaged the optical nerve."

Nothing Deterred TR

Roosevelt used to enjoy walking, and when he walked he walked in a beeline. Almost nothing deterred him. Only when he came to a tree, would he yield the right of way. For a thick, a swamp or unpassable underbrush, never. My brother-in-law, Dan T. Moore Jr., now living in Cleveland, tells how, as a small boy he tried to keep up with TR and his father in walking through a swampland, but lagged far behind.

Roosevelt Island, lying in the Potomac between the Key and Memorial bridges, is named for the late President because he used to enjoy exploring it. But the story is not generally known how TR challenged Colonel Moore to swim to the island in mid-March when the river was still icy. Peeling down to their underwear, they reached the island, about 100 yards distant, but were so cold that they found a boat and rowed back. Picking up their clothes they put part of them on and tried to sneak back to the White House unseen.

That would have been impossible today, because the Lincoln Memorial and part of the Navy Department lie between the White House and the river. But in those days the area was undeveloped and they managed to reach the rear door of the White House, cold and bedraggled, when Mrs. Roosevelt caught both.

Roosevelt would be glad, if alive today, to know that the people of Washington have preserved the original wilderness on Roosevelt Island. Along with Gifford Pinchot, whom he appointed as Chief Forester, TR was the founder of conservation, and one of the Congressional objections Republicans would like to forget is the manner in which they blocked a bill in the House of Representatives last year to make 1958 "Roosevelt Memorial Year."

Significantly the man now running for the Senate from Roosevelt's home state, Congressman Kenneth Keating of New York, was responsible for blocking the Roosevelt memorial resolution. The resolution, introduced by Sen. James Murray of Montana, had passed the Senate unanimously. Sixty-three Senators, Republican and Democrats, sponsored it. But in the House Judiciary Committee it was blocked by Keating, who played the game of the private power lobbyists. They objected to praise of Roosevelt's public power-conservation policies which they considered too contrary to Eisenhower's private power policies.

The resolution never got out of Keating's Judiciary Committee. Major Contributions

Most people don't remember it, but it was Teddy Roosevelt who founded the FBI, virtually founded civil service, revised the artillery system of the U.S. Army, and painted the U.S. Navy white. Like his cousin, Franklin D. Roosevelt, TR served as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and as a great Navy booster he asked Congress for authority to send the newly painted "white fleet" around the world. Congress refused. Whereupon Roosevelt ordered the fleet halfway around the world, then told Congress it could supply the money to bring it back.

Unlike the moderation and pleasant smiles so familiar around the White House today, TR was always in hot water, was always being called names. He had the undying enmity of big business as the result of his trust-busting. John D. Rockefeller, whose grandson is now running for governor of New York, was one of his enemies. It was TR who broke up the Standard Oil empire.

On the surface, TR was thick skinned. Publicly he appeared to shed criticism as if it was praise. Privately he worried over criticism. My father-in-law used to accompany him on carriage drives around Washington and recalls that a small boy once hurled a taunt at Roosevelt, a taunt he had picked up from the big business drive waged against him. It upset the President considerably.

The White House was alive with children in those days — the Roosevelt children. It was not the silent, dignified edifice it is today. Once Colonel Moore caught the Roosevelt boys taking a pony to the top floor of the White House in the elevator.

The Roosevelt children went to the public schools of Washington. They were taught to live and play with other boys. When one of them was asked how he got along with "common" boys, he replied: "My father says there are only tall boys and short boys, and bad boys and good boys, and that's all the kind of boys there are."

That was the White House in those days, and that was the man who guided the USA through the energetic, dynamic period when the nation was definitely on the upgrade toward its glorious position of USA 1st-class power.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

There is an old man next door. He wears a cap and he does a little work around the house and sometimes he just stands and watches the seasons change. He is short, hunched a little, and strong. I do not know what he did with his life. When I look out of my window, I see him leaning over an iron rail, staring at the river.

What does he think about? He stands a long time. Sometimes I see him up on the rocks, looking out to sea. When we meet, I say: "Hello, Pop" and he waves a hand and his face breaks into a smile.

Age, to my way of thinking, is an interesting and saddening process. I feel for Pop because the battle is behind him and a man is lonesome when he isn't competing for something. Percentage-wise, we have more old people than any nation in the world. And we are going to have more because science is adding to our years.

For the old people, we have pensions and social security, but very little understanding. They are on park benches and in wheelchairs everywhere between St. Petersburg and Los Angeles. They understand each other, but they do not understand us and we do not understand them.

If science is to keep them alive longer, it is our duty to learn the emotional side of being old. All too soon, we will be the old people. Respect isn't the answer because respect is taken for granted. That's just good manners with a dash of admiration.

One of the things I know about age is that people tend to be petty and selfish. They sulk over trifles. They are grasping about the things that belong to them. My mother once started a big family blast by asking my wife what had happened to the little plate Elinor borrowed to take home a piece of cake.

The emotions of old people hinge on their health. Often, you hear them say: "I have my good days and my not-so-good days." The muscles atrophy, the glands weaken, the arteries become as brittle as uncooked spaghetti. This affects the thinking.

Deep down, they become disgusted with themselves and, when this happens, they sometimes take their revenge on the young. A mother-in-law weeps in her room and complains that her grandchildren have no respect for her. An old man raises his shaking fists to the ceiling and says: "I wish God would take me. Nobody around here wants me."

This is untrue. As long as he has a roof over his head, someone wants him, even though the someone loses patience with him at times. The unwanted are in the Homes for the Aged. I have heard married daughters plead with their mothers that "You'll be happier there, Momma. You'll get the best of care and you'll meet a lot of women your own age. It isn't as though we're not going to see you anymore."

That's the Judas kiss. Translated, it means: "My husband can't stand you anymore. He tells me that I have a choice between you and him. I've picked him, Momma." This is one of the hard facts of life. My mother-in-law lived with us from age 57 to 77. It wasn't easy and, until the day she died in the bedroom upstairs, I never understood her. She cried if I said the wrong thing; she cried if I brought a corsage. My mother was a pretty good crier, too.

To grow old gracefully is almost impossible. To do it, an old man or old lady must be agreeable one hundred per cent of the time, never ask for help, and die without a whimper. Only a mouse can make it.

The personality of man changes every seven years. The most dramatic changes often occur between the ages of 49 and 56. It is in this period that most of us begin to suspect that we are not appreciated. To some it comes earlier; to others, later. To a few, never.

At the age of 60, the feeling may be gone. Or it may be worse. Old age used to begin at 60. Today, millions of people have youthful attitudes at 65. The happy ones do not feel sorry for themselves.

They know what they are: grains of sand on a big beach, liable to be swept away by the next wave...

Colts' Quarterback Passes For Two TDs, Sets Up Two More

By LOU PANOS

BALTIMORE (AP) — The unbeaten Baltimore Colts, thriving on the generalship of quarterback Johnny Unitas and a savage defense, racked up a 35-10 National Football League victory over the Washington Redskins Sunday.

A record sellout crowd of 54,403 howled itself hoarse in Memorial Stadium as the Colts stormed back from a 7-0 deficit early in the first period and rolled to their fifth straight triumph.

Unitas, struggling off Bert Zagers' four-yard scoring dash for the Redskins after the opening kickoff, passed for two touchdowns and set up two more with his accurate tosses.

Lyles Runs 101 Yards

Lenny Lyles tallied the other Colt TD by racing 101 yards on a kickoff return. It was his second end-zone-to-end-zone dash of the year.

After Zagers capped an 11-play, 70-yard Washington scoring march with his touchdown run, Unitas quickly steered the Colts to the equalizer. He passed 45 yards to halfback Lenny Moore as the big gainer in a 75-yard drive, then sent Moore around left end for the final 12.

Steve Myhra booted the first of his five conversions.

Unitas Is Standout

In the second period, Unitas climaxed a 72-yard campaign with a 17-yard flip to end Raymond Berry in the left corner of the end zone and completed three straight passes good for 34 yards before Alan Ameche rammed over from the four.

Sam Baker's 31-yard field goal for Washington, Lyles' breathtaking touchdown dash with the next kickoff, and a 48-yard Unitas-to-Berry pass wound up with the scoring for the third period and the game.

Washington 7 0 3 0-10
Baltimore 7 14 14 0-35

Washington: TD, Zagers (4 run), Pat, Baker, FG, Baker (31).
Baltimore: TD, Moore (12 run), Berry (217 yard pass from Unitas, 48 pass from Unitas), Lyles (101, kickoff return), Ameche (14 run), PAT, Myhra 5.

Jerry Kelican scored three touchdowns on runs of 41, 27 and four yards to spark Potomac State College's Catamounts to a 29-8 victory over Montgomery Junior College Saturday at Montgomery Blair High School Field, Silver Spring, Md.

It was Potomac's seventh consecutive victory over Montgomery in their series which started in 1948. In the seven games Montgomery has scored only three touchdowns against Keyser teams coached by Dana "Horse" Lough.

Montgomery took an 8-0 lead in the first period on a 61-yard pass play executed by Doug Thomas to Bob Digulimio. The same passing combination also accounted for the two-point conversion.

The Catamounts scored 15 points in the second period and 14 in the third.

Mike Sica scored one touchdown on a 21-yard run and kicked three extra points. Kelican passed to Edgar Van Meter for Potomac's two other points.

Potomac State (2-3-1) defeated Wesley College at Dover, Delaware, on Saturday.

Score by periods:
Potomac 8 15 14 0-29
Montgomery 0 0 0 0-0

TOUCHDOWNS: Potomac State — Kelican 3, Sica, Montgomery College — Digulimio.
ONE POINT CONVERSIONS: Potomac State — Sica (3 kicks).
TWO POINT CONVERSIONS: Montgomery — Digulimio (pass); Potomac State — Van Meter (pass).

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Today's looser, more comfortable clothes can be very becoming if their foundations are carefully chosen.

Shapes With Shape

Designers are continuing their crusade for the unfitted look this fall. They make their deepest bow to Paris in many a decade. But free form silhouettes are far removed from the baggy gunny-sack look that first appeared and displeased husbands.

Clothes have been developed into feminine loosened lines with enough variety to please everyone. And, there never was a season when fashion more desperately was in need of the right props—or foundation beneath.

Most daytime silhouettes touch at bust and hipline. The barely-fitted look in suits—shapely in front with straight backs—are about hipbone length. Skirts, of course, are no more than two inches from the middle of the knee cap. The mobile hip is definitely in the limelight.

These gay young fashions make us definitely anatomy-conscious, and none will look right without the proper foundations. For the building of all costumes starts from the inside.

It's wise to go to a good shop and consult the corsetiere there, for they have been trained to understand all figures and what is needed for current fashions. Try on a number of garments to be sure they give the support and flattery needed.

If your figure is overweight, wear a foundation all day and every day. Without it your figure will spread—and particularly as you grow older. Exercises will help to keep you firm, but you need the comfortable support of a girdle, too.

TOMORROW: Secret Survey.

"FIGURED FOR YOU." FIGURED FOR YOU gives expert detailed instructions and illustrates how to select foundation garments that provide comeliness, control and beautiful comfort for your individual type of figure. Send in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper for FIGURED FOR YOU.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our husband and father, George H. Kroll, who passed away October 27th, 1958.

Loving memories never die. As years roll on and days go by in our hearts a memory is kept of the one we loved and will never forget. Sadly missed by wife and children.

Lutherans Lay Cornerstone For Church

Over 300 Attend St. Paul's Service

Between 300 and 350 members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church observed Reformation Sunday by attending the cornerstone laying yesterday afternoon for the congregation's new edifice at the intersection of Washington and Smallwood streets.

Rev. J. Frank Fife, D.D., president of the Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church, concluded his remarks on the occasion by expressing a wish that God may guide the members of the congregation in their new church.

In his brief statement, Dr. Fife referred to the United Lutheran Church as the largest Protestant church in the world today. In the Synod of Maryland today there are 153 Lutheran congregations, he said.

Serving Church

He referred to the United Lutheran Church as a "serving" church, and offered several illustrations of what he meant. In a church bulletin yesterday morning, Dr. Fife observed a brief note of thanks in which one member of the congregation thanked others for blood transfusions which had saved her life. It also serves through its mission work. Many Lutheran laymen are assuming added duties in congregations because there are just not enough ministers.

Many articles were placed in the box to be sealed up in the cornerstone. Rev. John F. Sammel, pastor of St. Paul's, handed the articles to R. Harold Fearer, chairman of the church's worship committee. They included a Bible, a copy of the history of St. Paul's Lutheran Church; a copy of the Common Service Book, a 1958 United Lutheran Church of America yearbook, minutes of the 1958 convention of the Maryland Synod, the groundbreaking issue of The Lutheran magazine, church bulletins, church epistles, church calendars, selected photographs of groundbreaking and of the site before construction started, 1958 coins, pictures and sketches of the sons of the church who now are in the ministry.

Church and organization member lists were presented to Rev. Mr. Sammel by the following:

Congregation membership and treasurer's report, Raymond H. Hewitt, treasurer; the Vestry, Howard Irwin, secretary; new church building, Dr. Charles L. Kopp, chairman; Sunday School staff members, David Smith, superintendent; adult department, Mrs. Roy B. Whitson; senior department, Brad Moon; intermediate department, Sara Switzer; junior department, Barbara Buckel; primary department, Maris Smith; beginners department, Sally Trent; nursery room, Mrs. Harold Fearer; United Lutheran church women, Mrs. Eloise Shaffer, secretary; United Lutheran Church brotherhood, Louis Griggs, secretary; intermediate and senior Luther League, Miss Vera E. MacKenzie; junior league, Miss Susan Zembower; church choir, Mrs. Harry C. Utterback, president; chapel choir, Miss Donna George; chapel choir, George Hartung; church ushers club, Bruce Zembower, head usher; acolyte corps, Rick Buckel; Boy Scouts, Howard VanHorn II; Girl Scouts, Ann Stern.

Dr. Kopp Gets Trowel

For the actual placing of the cornerstone, William A. Douglas, president of the George F. Hazelwood Company, the contractor for the church building, handed the trowel to Dr. Kopp as chairman of the building committee. Dr. Kopp then used the trowel to spread the mortar on which the cornerstone was placed.

The job of actually putting the cornerstone in place was done by Henry Kuhn, the masonry contractor; Randal J. Rowley, a member of St. Paul's and one of the masons on the job, and Joseph Blubaugh, job superintendent for the Hazelwood Company.

Three choirs of the church participated in the ceremony yesterday afternoon. They were led by Mrs. M. Monroe MacKenzie, assistant director, filling in for Dr. Frank E. Gamble, who was out of town. Besides the church choir, composed of adults, they included the chancel choir, made up of junior and senior high school pupils, and the chapel choir, composed of grade school children.

Donald Turley, a Frostburg State Teachers College student who plans to enter the Lutheran ministry, assisted Rev. Mr. Sammel with some of the closing prayers of the brief service. There had been some rain earlier in the afternoon but during the 30-minute service it was only cold and overcast.

Ridgeley Girl Hurt In Fall Over Fence

Shirley Mellott, 16, Ridgeley, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital last night for X-rays and observation after she was injured in a fall.

Ridgeley Chief Of Police Jack Cornett said the young girl was injured when she fell over a wire fence while running across a yard. She was brought to the hospital about 9 p. m. by the Ridgeley ambulance.

St. Paul's Cornerstone Is Laid

The cornerstone for the new St. Paul's Lutheran Church on the site of the old Roman home at Washington and Smallwood streets was laid in a Reformation Sunday service yesterday afternoon. Dr. Charles L. Kopp, chairman of the building committee, is shown with the trowel placing mortar around

Judge Prescott Unopposed And Undesignated

There is one man whose name will appear on the November 4 ballot who is unopposed and is running without any political label.

He is Judge Stedman Prescott of Rockville in Montgomery County, who is running for a 15-year term on the Maryland Court of Appeals. Judge Prescott was appointed by Governor Theodore R. McKeldin and qualified October 11, 1956, for the position vacated by the resignation of Judge Edward S. Delaplaine.

There is a younger judge in point of service, Judge William R. Horney, who was appointed November 4, 1957, and qualified the next day for the Court of Appeals. Dr. Carl N. Everstine, director of the Department of Legislative Reference, states that the Constitution provides that a judge may serve a year before he is to face election. Judge Horney's first year will not end until the day after the election.

The event tonight will also be featured by a program of entertainment.

Two-Year Pact Reached For L-O-F Plants

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Production workers at the Libbey-Owens-Ford plant here will begin returning to work Monday morning, ending a strike which began nearly three weeks ago.

A plant spokesman said the unit was expected to be in full production within 24 hours.

The workers are among some 10,000 United Glass and Ceramic Workers union members in four states who went out on strike against Libbey-Owens-Ford and Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The strike against Libbey-Owens-Ford ended Saturday night when representatives of both sides signed a new two-year labor agreement at a meeting in Cleveland, Ohio.

However, the strike against Pittsburgh Plate, which has a plant in Clarksburg, continues. Negotiations between the union and that company have been switched from Cleveland to Louisville, Ky.

The new pact calls for an immediate eight-cent hourly pay boost and increased pension benefits. Another eight-cent hourly pay increase will go into effect Oct. 25, 1959.

Two Girls Hurt In Accident

Two teen-age West Virginia girls were treated yesterday afternoon at Memorial Hospital for injuries sustained about 1:45 p.m. when the truck in which they were riding struck a tree near Rada in Hampshire County.

Treated were Miss Norma Jean Robey, 18, of Rada, and Miss Lena Mongold, 17, of Romney. State Police Sgt. W. F. Bowley said Miss Robey was driving the truck along a county road leading from Burlington to Rada when the accident occurred. Miss Mongold was a passenger.

Sgt. Bowley was informed that boxes of apples on the back of the truck were bouncing as the truck moved along. This movement attracted the attention of Miss Robey and while her eyes were off the road she lost control and the truck struck a tree several hundred yards from Rada. Damage to the truck was set at about $200.

Miss Robey was treated for abrasions of the ribs and Miss Mongold for lacerations of the forehead and left leg. Neither was admitted.

Sen. Beall Says Courts Upset Mayor's Record

Devereux, Tawes Exchange Blasts

By The Associated Press

Sen. J. Glenn Beall says the courts, through their rulings affecting Baltimore's city administration, have condemned the record of Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro.

Beall, Republican seeking re-election to the U. S. Senate against D'Alesandro, a Democrat, said it wasn't so much he as it was the courts that have pointed an accusing finger at D'Alesandro.

The GOP senator said the courts had upset the city's advertising tax on which the mayor himself had reversed positions, had ruled against the city acquiring park-owned property for a civic center, and had overturned "Mr. D'Alesandro's grab for a 66 per cent salary increase of $10,000."

Cities Parking Scandals

Among other rulings, Beall added, "our local courts finally put an end to the infamous off-street parking scandals."

D'Alesandro was campaigning in Charles County during the week-end when Beall released his barrage. But in a statement from his Baltimore headquarters D'Alesandro said he never ceases to be amazed "at the vacillations of my Republican opponent."

He termed Beall the "darling of the special interests," one who neglects "the great mass of ordinary every-day citizens."

Meanwhile, the gubernatorial candidates were also flicking whips of sharp criticism at one another.

Republican James P. S. Devereux called Democrat J. Millard Tawes a "welsler from way back" who had gone back on his oath of office.

And Tawes, stumping Southern Maryland with D'Alesandro, scored his GOP opponent as "Do-Nothing Devereux."

Tawes added: "He has never sponsored a single piece of policy-making legislation. The few bills he has introduced have been of a minor nature . . ."

Says Tawes Welshed

The Democratic candidate declared Congressman Devereux had never served on any congressional committees dealing with broad areas of economics, agriculture, labor, education or conservation — "areas which are of special interest to state governments."

Devereux accused Tawes of having welshed on his oath of office "when he illegally used rationed gasoline for a pleasure trip while the nation was at war."

In the current general elections campaign, Devereux said, Tawes had welshed on his statements about issues. Particularly he criticized what he labeled Tawes' 230-word "masterpiece of ambiguity" in reply to a questionnaire on sentiment about a teachers' pay raise.

Hyman Pressman, chairman of the "Truth Squad for Beall," called on D'Alesandro to apologize to Beall for terming one of the senator's statements a "brazen lie."

The Baltimore lawyer was referring to D'Alesandro's reaction to a remark by Beall that the Baltimore city government, under D'Alesandro, had let a contract for fire-fighting equipment without competitive bidding.

Police Officer Harold Gibson said he was driving the cruiser along Bowen Street in the rear of the B&O YMCA when the boy came out of an alley and struck the left rear fender about 5:10 p.m.

Officer Gibson took the boy to the Memorial Hospital dispensary where he was examined and discharged.

3 Amendments To Constitution On Ballots

One Expected To Carry Local Interest

Besides electing candidates to fill 24 positions from U. S. Senator to county treasurer, the voters of Allegany County and all of the rest of the state of Maryland will be called upon November 4 to vote on three state constitutional amendments.

Judging from their response in the 1954 and 1956 general elections, only a small percentage of those balloting will bother to express a choice on the constitutional amendments.

Back in 1954, when 28,141 Allegany County citizens went to the polls, fewer than one-third expressed themselves or the nine constitutional amendments. The heaviest vote on any of the nine issues in 1954 was on a proposal raise the Governor's salary from $4,500 to $13,000 a year. Some 9,091 Allegany countians, or 32.3 per cent, voted on that salary question. What's more, a slight majority, 4,671 to 4,420, opposed the pay boost, which nevertheless carried because of general state-wide support.

Most Approved

That negative vote on the Governor's salary issue was the exception rather than the rule. Of nine constitutional amendments considered in the 1954 election, seven were approved by a majority of the Allegany County voters who bothered to make a choice. The other exception was on the amendment which created additional judgeships and assured Garrett County of a judge at the expense of Allegany County. Despite the loss of a judgeship, that measure lost in this county by only 52 votes, 4,009 to 3,957.

In 1956, there were seven constitutional amendments and again only a small percentage of the 31,470 Allegany countians voting took the time to vote on the issues. A majority of those voting favored all seven.

Highest vote on any of the amendments was on one which broadened absentee voting for disabled persons. Some 7,504, or 23.8 per cent of those who went to the polls, expressed themselves. Some 6,400 were favorable and only 1,104 opposed. The vote on the other issues of 1956 trended down to a low of 5,610, only 17.8 per cent of those who went to the polls.

The Amendments

Of the three issues on the ballot November 4, only one is likely to attract much interest in this county. The first is a constitutional amendment which proposes that the salary of any appointed public officer of the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore may be increased or decreased at any time; except that the salary of such an officer who is not in the Classified City Service may not be increased or decreased more than once during his term of office.

Dr. Carl N. Everstine, director of the Department of Legislative Reference, said that two or three years ago the City of Baltimore attempted to increase the compensation of the mayor and other leading executive officers and also of the members of City Council. This power was challenged by Hyman Pressman and taken to the Court of Appeals, where it was declared that the city could not increase these salaries during the term of office. Those who are members of the Classified City Service are not restricted in receiving increases.

The second proposed constitutional amendment is the one which might interest some Allegany County voters. Dr. Everstine reports that this is designed to cure what amounts to an ambiguity in the present Constitution concerning the filling of vacancies in the office of State's Attorney. The Constitution now provides that a vacancy is to be filled by "the" judge of the county or city having criminal jurisdiction. Some of the counties now have two or three judges for criminal jurisdiction and there are also at least three judges in Baltimore City with criminal jurisdiction.

Would Clarify System

The proposed amendment would give the appointment to all the Circuit Court judges in a county and to the entire Supreme Bench in Baltimore City. It will be recalled that when James S. Getty was appointed early this year as successor to Paul M. Fletcher as state's attorney, the appointment was agreed upon by both Judges George Henderson and Morgan C. Harris of this county as well as the two other judges of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, Neil C. Fraley of Garrett County and D. K. McLaughlin in Washington County. After the amendment, Judge Harris alone would have the authority, now that Judge Henderson has retired.

Proposed by the third amendment is the abolition of the job of state librarian. Dr. Everstine explains that this office is a very inactive one and the $1,500 salary is totally inadequate at the present time.
